

JANET WILSON: AUTHOR, ILLUSTRATOR, SPEAKER

INSPIRING HEARTS AND MINDS

*New Release

“Janet’s passion for social, environmental, and First Nations justice issues, as well as art, makes her a versatile and inspiring speaker.”

Presentation themes include:

- Environmental & Climate Justice
- First Nations philosophy & values
- Child rights, social justice, inequity
- Compassion & kindness, bullying
- Peace & non-violence

The key to the success of my talks is in stories— let extraordinary young activists deliver their hopeful and helpful messages in their own video-taped voices, or through their poetry, art, and music, to inspire the activist in all of us. By example, they show that by working together and making positive choices, even small efforts can make the world better and kinder. Their actions will empower and motivate students to feel deeply, act responsibly, and to learn and think critically.

“I believe our generation does not see activism just as a necessity or obligation, but a beautiful opportunity to invent the unexpected and to spread our optimism that we can make a better world.” Ta’Kaiya Blaney, Canada

*“Inspirational!
Helpful and hopeful!”*

“Janet did such a great job captivating the children. She also did that for me!...Her books send such a strong message about how small positive changes can make such a big difference...Janet switched between stories, pictures, and videos to keep the students’ attention...They loved the stories and were very inspired.”
